

RSVP Form: Empowering Health Equity, Social Justice and Anti-Racism Efforts

IEHP would like to invite Providers to participate in a Community Conversation on Empowering Health Equity, Social Justice and Anti-Racism Efforts through Community Intersectional Dialogues. This dialogue is inspired by the UCR School of Medicine workshops aimed at improving health equity by addressing that a lack of understanding of “otherness” impedes interpersonal communication and the ability of patients from marginalized groups to effectively access health care opportunities.

Our distinguished community panel include:

- Luis Resendez, Licensed Marriage and Family Therapist, Founder and Owner of Vida Counseling Services, specializing in men’s mental health
- Jorge Delos Santos, Director of Programs and Prevention at TruEvolution Inc, a non-profit headquartered in Riverside that fights for health equity and racial justice to advance the quality of life and human dignity of LGBTQI+ people
- Dr. Gabriel Uribe, Director of Community Health at IEHP
- Dr. Adwoa Osei, Director Health Equity, Social Justice and Anti-Racism in Medical Education at University of California Riverside – School of Medicine and Pediatrician at UCR Health

We welcome Providers to join us for a sixty (60) minute session designed for clinicians that will include a twenty-minute dialogue with the community panelists, followed by discussion of the opening panel and how insights gained from it can be used to improve health outcomes. Finally, participants will discuss pearls for incorporation into clinical practice for culturally sensitive and anti-racist care.
