Inland Empire Health Plan (IEHP) would like to take this opportunity to announce that the University of La Verne, in partnership with the American Academy of Professional Coders (AAPC) offers medical coding and medical billing programs. These programs will expand your knowledge of industry trends, acquire new skills and network with employers and colleagues in our professional education offerings designed to increase your ability to provide care to the community.

They offer a variety of formats to fit individual organizational needs including certificate programs that can be taken on an individual basis in a live virtual environment, onsite group training, and online self-paced programs.

Medical Coding

This offers Certified Professional Coder (CPC) program that consists of online course work and over 90 hours of live virtual class meetings. This exposes participants (new and seasoned in the field) to new requirements and emerging tools and technologies for capturing patient information and you will be prepared to take and pass the CPC exam. As part of the program, participants receive all CPC books, AAPC CPC national exam that is administered on the last day of class, 1-year membership to AAPC and an online learning system that coincides with the content discussed in class.

Medical Billing

This offers Certified Professional Biller (CPB) program that consists of online course work and over 90 hours of live virtual class meetings. Our program instructs participants on how to maintain all aspects of the revenue cycle and you will be prepared to take and pass the CPB exam. As part of the program, participants receive all CPB books, 1-year membership to AAPC, AAPC CPB national exam administered on the last day of class and an online learning system that coincides with the content discussed in class.
